Larry Huggins

Lawrence Huggins, of Huggins & Associates, is a professional facilitator and coach, specializing in organizational and team development, strategic planning, and conflict resolution. He teaches facilitation and communication skills, and the art of designing and facilitating effective meetings. He is certified as a facilitator in the discipline of the ontology of language, a powerful perceptual tool for understanding and intervening in organization, viewing them as linguistic systems. Ontology addresses two major questions that have become pivotal for the long-term success of schools: “How can principals work together effectively and develop trust in working relationships?” and “How can we build a high performance and collaborative school?”
